

This is a view of the entrance to the house.

The bedroom is currently located on the front of the house and now opens onto the front porch. The room barely accommodates a queen size bed and has no closet.

Currently, a small kitchen is located on the back of the house.

The only seating available for meals is a small table and stools in the kitchen.

This wall would be removed creating open space from living room to kitchen. Currently the wall separates the living room from the bedroom.

The living room is too small to accommodate a coffee table or any seating for meals.
